Comparison of the KAP for folate intervention among women with in vitro fertilization/intracytoplasmic sperm injection twin pregnancies. Previous studies have demonstrated that in vitro fertilization (IVF) twin pregnancies have a higher rate of congenital malformations (CM) than singletons. To improve the outcome of IVF twin pregnancies, we planned to target at the pregnancies in which adverse perinatal outcomes have been observed. The aim of this study was to compare the knowledge and attitudes on pregnancy nutrition and medicine among women with IVF twin pregnancies and women with singletons. This is a cross-sectional study based on 300 pregnant women with twin pregnancies and 300 women with singleton pregnancies, recruited from a university hospital in Seoul, Korea. They were divided into two groups based on pregnancy method, and an anonymous questionnaire was used for data collection. The completed questionnaires were analyzed by using independent t-test and one-way ANOVA. To analyze univariate logistic regression, odds ratios and 95 % confidence interval were calculated. The median age of the women with twin pregnancies ($25.2 \pm 3.2$ years) was significantly lower than the age of women with singleton pregnancies ($26.0 \pm 3.1$ years). There were no significant differences between the two groups in proportion of age, education levels, source of abortion, past obstetric history, multipara, and history of infertility. More than half of the women with twin pregnancies had previous knowledge on folate (87.1 %), folic acid (59.4 %), and pregnancy nutrition (67.2 %), compared with the previous knowledge of women with singletons (61.3, 51.8, and 62.4 %, respectively). The level of women's knowledge on folate and folic acid was significantly higher in the IVF twin pregnancies group than in the singletons group. In the area of nutrition, women with IVF twin pregnancies had more knowledge of pregnancy nutrition than women with singletons ($P = 0.011$). Women with IVF twin pregnancies and singletons had significantly different attitudes, especially when they had prior knowledge about folate. Women with IVF twin pregnancies had relatively better knowledge and attitude about folic acid and pregnancy nutrition, compared with those with singletons.Q: Cheap way to measure static power usage I have a project that requires me to measure how much power a particular device is drawing. Q: Can I use Cloud Firestore with react native without the firebase cloud functions? I'm trying to implement Firestore into my react native project. I've checked the documentation and it seems I can use it without firebase cloud functions. However, I'm wondering if this will work in production - The Node.js backend would be my heroku app, where I have multiple functions for registering new users. I know firebase automatically handles security for you and all that, but I just wonder whether Firestore can work in production without cloud functions. A: Yes, you can definitely use Cloud Firestore without Cloud Functions in production. The Cloud Firestore client library has a local server component built into it and it's really convenient when working with the local server. See the Deploy your Client App section of the documentation for more info. However, I'm wondering if this will work in production Cloud Firestore is a fully managed and hosted service. There are no servers involved when you use the client library for local development so, yes, it will work for production too. CryoProbe CryoProbe (from frozen probe) is a method of sampling frozen cells for biological analysis, using a cryogenic probe for the removal of cells from a frozen tissue section. This method is often used for tissue-based immunohistochemical staining. Procedure The method of taking a sample is similar to any other physical process, like when taking a drill-hole in rock, the sample cannot be formed or taken apart without disrupting the sample. There are two methods of taking a biological sample for analysis using cryogenic probes: Removal of whole tissue section from frozen block Removal of cells from frozen block The removal of cells from frozen block is taking a small piece of frozen section (or block) from a frozen tissue. The presence of the section eliminates the possibility of removing tissue from the section. The probe is simply plunged into the frozen block, ice forms around the probe and forms an ice plug in the frozen section. The ice plug is then split away from the frozen section and cells are sucked up with the ice plug as it is removed from the tissue. The result is a sample of cells from the frozen tissue without having to cut into the tissue. Cell sampling from frozen section can be done on any sectioning system using a cryo-chamber, not just a
